Description (revised)

Up for auction are the last items from my former Doctor Who collection – I purchased these from a gentleman in Vancouver who had worked with the Canadian unit on the Doctor Who TV Movie. He had worked in the special effects department on both the Doctor Who movie and several X-Files episodes. I obtained these shortly after the film premiered. The first item in this auction is a copy of the script – this is the Revised Draft dated November 14, 1995 and is slightly different than the final televised version. The script is 106 pages and in very good condition. The next items are 3 prop bullet slugs taken from the 7th Doctor's body during the hospital scene shortly after he is admitted. Each slug is slightly longer than 1/2 inch. The slugs were spotted with paint to look like blood. The final prop is the toe tag that was worn by both the 7th (Sylvester McCoy) and 8th (Paul McGann) Doctors. The toe tag looks like an authentic body marker and has the following info written in pen after each printed category: Name: Doe, John. Unit No: A-178, Hour of Death: 21:04, Date of Death: 30-12-99. The tag has other categories and various info and also a signature of a staff member. This tag is seen on screen in a very close-up shot when they are wheeling the body into the morgue. Rarely do any Doctor Who props surface, let alone anything at all from the film. I hate to part with these items, but I have to move after this summer and I need to raise some funds. Thanks for looking and good luck! I hope these will go to a fan of the program or as some would say: an enthusiast!
